“So, because of these complications, we need proof that these babies are biologically of Namibian descent. Otherwise, what if they actually have no biological relations to Namibia? If we rely on the mere word of mouth, how many more cases of similar nature would we handle if this one is simply approved without proof?” he asked.

‘Stateless and homeless’
The ministry’s refusal to issue the twins the necessary travel papers has effectively rendered them “stateless and homeless”, court documents read.

Lühl’s affidavit underlines that home affairs’ decision to ban their travel back home with him is an attempt to “forcibly separate me from my children, thereby leaving them uncared for, abandoned and stateless. Nothing could be further from the best interests of the children”.

While the babies’ birth certificates identify Lühl as their legal parent, they are not South African citizens and in order to be able to travel home, they need either a passport or an emergency travel document. Usually, children assume the nationality of their parents, but in this case, Namibian authorities refuse to do so.

“We have the right to come home,” Lühl said in court documents.

End discrimination

In a video posted and shared over the weekend, he said:

“As we celebrate Independence Day tomorrow, we should remember that for many members of the LG-BTQ community, the words

‘freedom and equality’ still ring quite hollow. And we have a minister of home affairs who is essentially closing the door of the Namibian house to two baby girls who are not even one week old today.”

He appealed for support “to end this discrimination and to allow Paula and Maya to come back home”.

The Namibian Equal Rights Movement has called on allies to join a march on 25 March before the urgent application will be heard in Windhoek.

Lühl’s legal team will argue that he and his husband have the right to a family. And, while the home affairs ministry will insist that marriage can only be possible between a man and a wife, this heterosexual male-female link “cannot be extended to the concept and notion of family”.

Lühl will be represented by Unomwinjo Katjipuka-Sibolile from Nixon Marcus Public Law Office, while the home affairs minister is represented by government lawyer Jabulani Ncube.

The case will be heard on Thursday at 09:00 by High Court judge Thomas Masuku.

• EIGHT DEATHS RECORDED OVER INDEPENDENCE WEEKEND

Footballer among weekend crash casualties

A footballer for former premier league side Young Chiefs is among the casualties from road accidents over the weekend.

NAMPA
ONGWEDIVA

Five people died on Saturday night when their car crashed into a barricade near the Bahnhof railway, situated 30km east of Rehoboth.

Two people escaped with serious injuries, Hardap regional police chief, Commissioner Eric Clay, said. The deceased’s bodies were burnt beyond recognition.

It is feared that among those who perished in the accident is a well-known Rehoboth-born chartered accountant, whose name cannot be revealed pending police confirmation of all victims’ identities.

Three perish in Oshikoto
In another accident, police in Oshikoto have opened a culpable homicide case after three people, including Young Chiefs footballer Erick Nantangwe Alweendo, died in a road crash that occurred on the Oshivelo-Tsumeb main road at around 08h50 on Friday. Police commander in the region, Commissioner Armas Shivute, confirmed the crash to Nampa in a telephonic interview on Saturday.

He said two vehicles travelling from opposite directions were involved in the crash, which occurred some 30 kilometres from Oshivelo.

According to Shivute, the

FATALITIES: A Tsumeb-Oshivelo road crash killed three people and a kudu last Friday. PHOTO: CONTRIBUTED vehicles are a white station wagon bought from Pupke-witz Toyota in Tsumeb to be delivered to the owner and a privately-owned black seven-seater sedan.

The Oshikoto police commander said the station wagon, driven by 29-year-old Gordon Cecil Gurirab and his passenger Alweendo (31), hit a kudu and collided head-on with the sedan driven by 56-year-old Josef Edward.

Shivute said the trio died on the spot and their next of kin have been informed. Police investigations continue.

Efficient offices and improved customer service.

Kapofi also took issue with scorecard analysts saying that if he harboured any presidential ambitions ahead of next year’s Swapo elective congress, he should forget them.

“I am not a contender for such a position and it hurts that I got linked to it,” he said.

Sixty-eight-year-old Kapofi said he is nowhere near the natural contenders for the race to replace Geingob both in the party and government.

The president is in his second term of presidency, which ends in 2025. The former secretary to Cabinet and presidential affairs minister is one of the senior figures in Swapo, but yesterday insisted: “The line-up [hierarchy] is there and I’m not anywhere in it”.

This despite all Swapo leadership positions becoming redundant going into congress and all members in good standing generally qualifying to contest for positions, including the coveted top four.

Because if I just wait on manufacturers to deliver - which they have not - that would mean Namibians are not going to get the vaccine and people are going to ask questions.”

One of the vaccines currently administered in the country is the Sinopharm vaccine donated by the Chinese government.

The arrival of this vaccine

- which has not yet been approved by the World Health Organisation (WHO) - has upset various sectors in the country.

As a result, both the Centre for Disease Control (CDC) and the local WHO office were absent from the launch of the ministry’s national vaccination programme on Friday. Health minister Dr Kalumbi Shangula pled ignorance of the concerns raised when asked about the absence of the WHO and the CDC.

“I am not aware. You are giving us news today,” he said.

CDC country director Dr Eric Dzubain said they are committed to international partnerships that will provide global access to safe and effective Covid-19 vaccines as quickly as possible.

“We can provide technical support to countries only when the vaccines they deploy have been pre-qualified or received an emergency use listing by the WHO or a robust national regulatory authority,” he added.

Nuusita Ashipala

ONGWEDIVA – The Oshakati Town Council has appointed Timoteus Namwandi as its CEO for the next five years, New Era understands.

The town council and its management committee have, however, elected not to speak on the appointment, saying an official briefing would be made in due course.

Namwandi to join Oshakati as CEO

But New Era is reliably informed that Namwandi was given the nod.

Approached for comment, Namwandi said he was not aware of the appointment and referred all queries to Oshakati Town Council.

The position became vacant following the resignation of its former CEO Werner Iita who at the insistence of the Electoral Act resigned to contest for a parliamentary position during the 2019 elections.

The acting CEO Kornelius Kapolo confirmed that a new CEO has been appointed and is expected to commence duty on 1 May 2021.

Kapolo's temporary arrangement as CEO ends on the last day of April.

Kapolo refused to mention the name of the successful applicant. "The mayor would be in a better position to comment on the issue," said Kapolo.

The mayor was not reachable at the time of going to print.

Interviews for the position of the CEO were done last year in August and its former CEO Iita also contested for the position.

Land acquires more acres for resettlement

Kuzeeko Tjitemisa

Government has surpassed a target during the 2019/2020 financial year, which compelled it to purchase at least 39.7 million hectares of farmland for resettlement purposes.

The land reform overachieved this by purchasing twice as much resettlement farming land. This information is contained in the government accountability report for the financial year 2020/21 tabled by finance minister Iipumbu Shiimi in parliament last week.

According to the report, the land reform ministry bought just over 81 million hectares of farmland during the 2019/20 financial year, more than double the intended 39.7 million hectares.

The acquired land, according to the report, was allocated to 13 beneficiaries with the main focus to improve their farming methods and individual income.

"Their economic situation has drastically changed since they now have access to land and sufficient and easily accessible water resources," it reads.

"The resettlement process plays an important role to the beneficiaries in becoming self-supporting and economically self-reliant," the report added. Furthermore, it said the ministry managed to develop its Annual Sector Execution Plans for Sub-sector Lands (ASEP) produced and submitted to the National Planning Commission (NPC).

In addition, the ministry formulated its development budget for capital projects in line with the guidelines provided by the NPC.

Similarly, the report added the ministry also developed its annual plan for the financial year 2019/20 based on its strategic plan for 2017-2022 and aligned to the Vision 2030, NDP5, Harambee Prosperity Plan and the 2014 Swapo election manifesto.

The plan was implemented in the four quarters of the last financial year, while an achievement of 80% performance was recorded.

"There were quite a few notable challenges such as financial constraints and human resource capacity among others, but despite the challenges, the ministry recorded a considerable achievement of 89% budget execution for the financial year 2019/20 period."

Omusati shelters more Angolans

Nuusita Ashipala

The situation of Angolan migrants in the region is unsustainable as the region can only provide enough food to sustain itself, the Omusati governor has said.

Erginus Endjala told New Era yesterday there is not enough food for all in the region.

The migrants claim that there is no food in Angola and pin their hopes on being recruited for odd jobs such as looking after livestock in Namibia in order to sustain their families back home.

Endjala said the number recorded so far in his region stands at 740.

More Angolans are arriving daily at Okalongo in the region in search of food and jobs.

Other groups of Angolan nationals are at Etunda, Oshifo and Oshikango.

Endjala said migrants are moving inland and are being absorbed into the villages.

A significant number of Angolans have been observed in Oshikango in search of jobs.

Some have been taken in at government's Etunda irrigation project and are given food in exchange for their labour.

Angolan Ambassador to Namibia Jovelina Costa during a visit to Etunda recently promised to provide the migrants with shelter, food and transportation back to Angola.

"But since the delegation left nothing has been done up to now," said Endjala.

He said talks between Angola and the Ministry of International Relations and Cooperation are also underway to negotiate their repatriation.

The governor said humanitarian organisations have also met to discuss how best to address the situation.

The migrants were provided with food by the Office of the Prime Minister over the weekend.

"When they arrived, they looked very exhausted and tired but they now look better," Endjala said.

Help also said some food donations streamed in from good Samaritans in the region.

Women in Business: A formidable mother-daughter duo

Staff Reporter

Twenty-one years ago, Zayanih Dennis took an incredible leap of faith. With a small amount of savings, she created Potentia, a Human Resources consultancy driven to amplify the potential of Namibian businesses and talent.

At the time, 33-year-old Zayanih was a struggling mom of two daughters, with only a dream and determination for creating the Potentia brand. Her daughter Nikita had always been a part of the Potentia journey. And although her mom always recognised her capacity to meaningfully contribute to the business, she wanted Nikita to chart her own path.

Nikita initially pursued a career as an Investment Analyst, specialising in investment marketing in South Africa. As her skills developed, Nikita found herself gravitating towards Potentia. "I wanted to help grow the company that had seen me grow," said Nikita.

Three years ago, Nikita joined the Potentia team as marketing manager. With mom as managing director, they are a force to be reckoned with, balancing an older generation's wisdom with a younger one's innovative drive. Together, they have carved a niche in the industry as female leaders in Namibian business.

Zayanih admits that starting the business was not easy. At the time, as a woman of colour, she experienced significant barriers to entry. With elements of racism and ageism prevalent, Zayanih admits that she did not fit the business leader stereotype of 21 years ago. "There was no drive to bring about equity in the alignment of available talent with the needs of businesses," she says, having met numerous doubters who could not share her vision for Potentia as a potentially lucrative platform connecting organisations, talent and communities for mutually rewarding success.

Nikita, now 30, and her mom still work hard to prove themselves, to build trust with stakeholders and drive Potentia's vision. "A myriad of challenges face women who are building their careers, and I am no exception," she lamented. "However, my mom and I remain determined to keep rising."

The Covid-19 pandemic had a significant impact on everyone's lives. "We had to step back, regroup and remind ourselves of what is most important," said Zayanih. They advise businesses to use this time to reinvent themselves by learning and creating environments conducive to employee development. "Understand the positive impact of flexible hours on employee wellbeing. Invest in digital projects that free up employee time. And allow time for creative and impactful projects", Zayanih said.

This mother-daughter duo's original thinking positions them as trend-setters in the industry. Zayanih noted the need in a family business to transition smoothly between family and work roles. They agree that they would not trade each other for anything—neither as family nor as colleagues.

Potentia Namibia Recruitment has long been a proud Nedbank Namibia client. Martha Murorua, Managing Director of Nedbank Namibia, referenced such businesses in her address on the importance of women in leadership roles earlier this week. Murorua recognises the importance of supporting female-led businesses.

"It's time to make equality and equity a business priority," she said, extending the International Women's Day (IWD) #ChooseToChallenge social media campaign to the Namibian populace as a whole.

Zayanih and Nikita feel that until women are fully acknowledged in business, progress remains stifled. "We are particularly encouraged by both our clients and our candidates, who have taken the time to appoint, mentor and invest in women, and also by seeing our male counterparts becoming allies. Our hope for all women on IWD is to recognise how unique they are and that the world is a greater place because of them."

Their favourite quote from Maya Angelou is "My mission in life is not merely to survive, but to thrive: and to do so with some passion, some compassion, some humour and some style."

These two have learnt important life lessons from each other. Zayanih says, "Nikita has helped me recognise the value of taking time off and fully embracing it when I do." Nikita highlights, "My mother has taught me that work is a labour of love—for your organisation, your team, your clients, your family and your greater community."

Attachments: 21-0189 BID_15032021.pdf

Dear Potential Interested and Affected Party

Stubenrauch Planning Consultants (SPC) hereby give notice to all potentially Interested and Affected Parties (I&APs) that an application will be made to the Environmental Commissioner in terms of the Environmental Management Act (No 7 of 2007) and the Environmental Impact Assessment Regulations (GN 30 of 6 February 2012) for the following:

- Township Establishment on Consolidated Erf X, Efidi Proper, consisting of 103 Erven and Remainder to be known as Efidi Extension 6;
- Township Establishment on Portion 89 of the Remainder of Ongwediva Town and Townlands No 881, consisting of 161 Erven and Remainder to be known as Zola Proper;
- Township Establishment on Portion 88 of the Remainder of Ongwediva Town and Townlands No 881, consisting of 177 Erven and Remainder to be known as Onawa Proper.

The proposed activities trigger listed activities as per the List of Activities requiring Environmental Clearance (Government Notice 29 of 6 February 2012) and accordingly require an Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) to be conducted.

In line with Regulation 21(2) of the mentioned EIA Regulations, a Background Information Document (BID) is distributed to pre-identified Interested and Affected Parties as part of the public consultation process for this EIA. An Environmental Assessment will be undertaken to determine the potential impact of the development on the environment and to determine all environmental, and social impacts associated with the proposed development activities. A background information document is attached detailing the activity and the intended environmental assessment process.

Public meetings for the proposed activities are scheduled to be held as follows:

Efidi Extension 6

Date: 27th March 2021
Time: 10h00
Venue: Omukwiyu, Efidi Proper

Onawa Proper

Date: 27th March 2021
Time: 14h00
Venue: Omwandi, Onawa behind Natis

Zola Proper

Date: 28th March 2021
Time: 10h00
Venue: Sam Nujom

Please note that the meetings will be held strictly in accordance with the current COVID-19 regulations.

In line with Namibia's Environmental Management Act (No. 7 of 2007) and EIA regulations (GN 30 of 6 February 2012), all I&APs are hereby invited to register and submit their comments, concerns or questions in writing via Email: bronwynn@spc.com.na; Tel: 061 25 11 89 or Fax: 061 25 21 57 on or before 6 April 2021.
