Geingob vehemently condemns GBV, Alcohol abuse

BY MICHAEL UUGWANGA

PRESIDENT Hage Geingob has condemned the rise in Gender-Based Violence (GBV) against women and children, as well as alcohol abuse.

Geingob stated this during the official opening of the Emergency Unit at the Intermediate Hospital Katutura, where he said Namibians should drink responsibly and avoid driving while under the influence of alcohol at all costs.

The emergency unit was inaugurated as part of Project 9682, a N$12 million public-private partnership between the Motor Vehicle Accident Fund (MVA) and Standard Bank Namibia.

The President emphasised that alcohol consumption must be addressed as a priority at churches as a way of raising awareness, as it is one of the leading causes of GBV.

"Women are no longer reliant on men. PHDs are held by women. Women are now breadwinners, which was not the case in the past. Killing innocent individuals (especially women and children) is wrong.

Do not murder. Only one glass is required. At graduation, most of those graduating are women, indicating that women are no longer dependent and are now heads of the house. However, they occasionally allow us (men) to be heads of the house through bargaining. "It's a good thing I stopped drinking. On weekdays, I never drink more than one drink and then go to bed. Alcoholism is not a laughing matter, and it is a serious condition. It is something that has to be addressed in churches. Boys are more likely than girls to abuse alcohol. People are being killed on the roads. Some of you are unable to drive. Many lives are lost on the highways," he said.

Geingob also pointed out that

health influences all parts of life and affects workforce productivity.

"A healthy nation can only be a productive nation. In this context, primary health care must remain at the heart of our public health actions. Programmes aimed at generating and spreading illness prevention awareness must be strengthened. The spread of health awareness must begin in our homes, schools, and communities," the President said.

Meanwhile, speaking at the same occasion, Motor Vehicle Accident Fund (MVA) board chairperson Dr. Shitaleni Herman said MVA spent roughly N$200 million on medical expenditures and N$95 million on other claims.

Dr. Herman reported decreased road accidents resulting in injuries and fatalities this year.

"Casualty-related crashes show that road deaths in Namibia have decreased from 26 per 100 000 people to 18 per 100 000 people. The number of deaths went down from around 700 every year to 466 last year. While these numbers remain high, they indicate that something is working in our preventative efforts and that there is a need to strengthen and reinforce where there are leakages. When everything fails, the MVA Fund bears the weight, spending over N$200 million in medical bills yearly in addition to N$95 million in other claims," Dr. Herman explained.

The emergency unit's upgrade and renovation include a new resuscitation room with eight beds and an oxygen/electrical supply at each bed, the conversion of the old resuscitation room into a paediatric unit, the extension of the gynaecological examination room, the conversion of storage space into consultation rooms, and the installation of a new air conditioning system.

"The refurbishment project, while significant, is just one facet of the MVA Fund's multifaceted approach to enhancing healthcare and rehabilitation services," Dr. Herman remarked.
