EPL, and set up a fund to ensure once I find the minerals, you can buy equity in my mine as seed capital.

Also, I am mad because my old leaders sold Erindi and I will never afford a farm in this country. It highlights that our leaders have no idea what youth want or need. As I speak, I want a farm between Okahandja and Windhoek to do what needs to be done, not this annoying daily commute from Hakahana to Klein Windhoek.

I need fishing quotas, and access to a fishing trawler. I believe I can do it and I have a whole team of young souls who are ready to innovate forward.

And lastly, I need an extra 15% of our diamonds to be polished here by Namibian youth; Namdia will buy them and sell them on our behalf.

Before I let go of this keyboard, our leaders and policymakers need to respect art, music, and sport, and stop forcing us to go and study nursing and teaching. We have amazing talents that can be commodified.

And we should be allowed to take seats at the big tables and take part in policy- and decision-making.

Having a seat at the table means that, at every stage of the decision-making process, you have one or two youth representatives who are specialists in that field. Having us there brings a different narrative, a different perspective.

It is clear you do not know what we need. We don't want charities and speeches; we need capital, a conducive environment, deeds, EPL, fishing quotas, and better education.

Just for the record, I don't want to join political parties so I can be carrying flags everywhere and be a yes man. I am a thinker and innovator, just take me as such. Also colleagues, I have a certificate, diploma, and degree so please stop forcing me to get a licence and to be a nice person to people in better positions.

And since when did licences and connections become the new qualifications? No disrespect to my drivers out there, but I think we might have enough taxis in Windhoek.

Anyway, come sit down with me and my fellow souls, bring kapana so we sit down, but please do not come with your cameras, bring a pen and paper and a budget for the youth. Email: gerastus16@gmail.com

Good Day

I refer to your Environmental Clearance Notice in today's New Era newspaper. Kindly send me the BID on this development, especially showing the layout of Portion X and where it is situated in Henties Bay.

Thanks you for your assistance, and kind regards
