Dear Ms/ Mrs. Foelscher,

Thank you for your interest in this project. We acknowledge receipt of your email and have officially registered you as an interested and affected party for this project. Please find attached the BID as well as the comments register form for the concerned projects. The BID for claims 72504-72506 was shared earlier.

Please note that in line with the public participation regulations of the Environmental Management Act of 2007 we have not received enough expressions of interest to substantiate a public consultation meeting. Invitation to participate in the concerned projects have been made and are still running in the form of newspaper adverts; site notices placed at the Karibib Town Council, Erongo Regional Council offices in Karibib, Erongo Regional Council Headquarters in Swakopmund; and gates of the respective farms concerned.

The attached Comments Register still provides you with a transparent opportunity to provide inputs and express concerns regarding these projects. Please note that in line with international best practice issues raised need to be substantiated by factual information is so claimed.

We look forward to having your valued input. Thank you

Kind Regards,
o.b.o of OMAVI Geotechnical & Geo-environmental Consultants

Getting jobs inside a stationary train SA train brings vaccines to people Saving people from travelling long distances as the government ramps up its Covid-19 vaccination drive.

SISIPHO SKWEYIYA

At Springs train station in South Africa's biggest city Johannesburg, Simphiwe Dyantyi and her partner wait their turn to board. But they are not going anywhere, instead they are getting Covid-19 jabs inside a stationary train.

The initiative by South African state logistics firm Transnet is meant to bring vaccines closer to people and save them from travelling long distances as the government ramps up its Covid-19 vaccination drive.

From the Springs station, the Transvaco train will in the first week of September move to rural Eastern Cape province.

Once there, it will make stops in different places in the province, bringing relief to poor villagers who are often without basic health facilities. It will be stationed there until November.

Dyantyi, 32, said the train had saved her a trip to the next vaccination centre where queues have been long since the government made vaccinations available to all adults last month.

"We've been waiting

South Africa has vaccinated more than 12 million people after its campaign took off. PHOTO NAMPA/REUTERS for this moment for a very long time," she told Reuters after receiving her Johnson and Johnson jab.

Industries

"We work in industries where you need to be at work all the time. So, it was very crucial for me to get this vaccine," said Dyantyi, a safety engineer at a local firm.

South Africa has been battered by three coronavirus waves, infecting at least 2 770 575 million people, killing 81 830, by far the continent's worst toll and pummelling an already struggling economy with lockdowns and travel restrictions.

South Africa has vaccinated more than 12 million people after its campaign got off to a slow start due to bureaucratic hiccups and a failure to start early talks with pharmaceutical companies, among other challenges.

"We are basically bringing the vaccines to the people," Paballo Mokoena, the train manager said.

"So, it cuts down on patients having to travel long distances, wait in long queues and sometimes even be turned back because vaccines maybe finished, or they get to clinics or hospitals late."

Onion farmers in tears over glut

MONIQUE NGO MAYAG

In a satellite town of Senegal's capital Dakar, 25-kilo sacks of onions are piled up on pavements, ignored by passers-by. The West African country is in middle of a supply glut, with prices plummeting and heaps of the pungent vegetables left to rot by the roadside.

"I'm going to give some to the local women," says farmer Diongue Maseye, 71, gazing despondently at his onions. He is standing inside a 450 square metre warehouse in Bambilor, an onion-producing town about 30 kilometres northeast of the capital Dakar, where his unsold produce has started to sprout. Gloomy farmer who produces about 450 000 tonnes of onions a year blame the problem on increased foreign competition and a lack of storage capacity. But the government also argues that farmers have overproduced this year, flooding the market with onions and depressing prices.

Maseye said prices had nearly halved. A 25-kilo sack of onions fetched the equivalent of about 13 euros a few months ago, he said, but are now worth about seven euros.

The bulbous vegetable is a lifeline to many in the nation of 16 million people, where it is a key ingredient in the national fish-and-rice dish, Thieboudienne, as well as Yassa chicken.

Amadou Abdoul Sy, the director of Senegal's market regulation agency, said some 200 000 farmers are employed in the onion sector.

3) Public Participation Meeting:

In strong support of the current national effort, to stimulate and promote more local entrepreneurship and investment, we strongly recommend more inclusivity of the general public via public participation meetings.

Public participation meetings give the interested and affected parties a better platform to openly raise all their concerns about any new economic development within their living environment.

In the spirit of global concern with regard to climate change, environmental consultants must stop trying to sail around the importance of the general public's participation on any possible destructive and exploitative activity within the Namibian extractive mining sector. Dimension store quarrying is already responsible for massive environmental destruction on our beautiful landscape, and we have to start with serious control on such abusive behaviour from some of our mining companies. Uncontrolled quarrying is extremely damaging, and we need to give this matter much more attention at all times.

Please address the issue on public participation meetings.

Issues and response Trail

Contributor	Organization	Date of communication	Mode of communication	Comment / Concern/ Question	EAP Response	Action
Bianca Foelscher	Community Activist	24-Sep-21	Email	Request to be registered as an interested and affected party (I&AP) and for Background Information Document (BID) to be shared with her. Furthermore, requests details on the public participation process.	Comment has been well received and will be considered in the scoping report.	BID shared and Ms. Foelscher registered as an I&AP. Impact will be kept as low as possible by adhering to the mitigation measures in the EMP. In line with the public participation regulations of the Environmental Management Act, OMAVI had not received enough expression of interests to substantiate a public consultation meeting. OMAVI shared the comments register with Ms Foelscher to provide her with a transparent opportunity to provide input and express concerns with regards to the proposed project. Further to the above, the proposed project was advertised in the newspapers and site adverts were placed at the Karibib Town Council, Erongo Regional Council and gates of the respective farms concerned.
Chris Brown	Chamber of Environment	06-Sep-21	Email	I wish to be registered as an I&AP and would appreciate that the BID be forwarded to me.	Comment has been well received and will be considered in the scoping report.	BID shared and registered as an I&AP.
