3. Summary of Issues Raised

The following issues have been raised during the consultation period as explained above.

Raised by	Issue Raised	Response
I&APs	The EPL encroaches Farm on its far right, what could be impacts to the adjacent farm?	Yes, the EPL 6691 encroaches the farm Garoeb, however, the proposed exploration and mining activities will take place very far from the farm.
	There is a new concession in the area, you need to confirm if it is not in the same area	The Concession has not been awarded yet In any case, the proposed exploration activities are far from the concession area. We will notify the proponent
	How far is the area proposed for exploration and where did you get the name Twyfelskupje	It is about 80 km from Aus. We (EAP) got the name from the geologist, Dr. Alan Marlow
	Where will you get water from?	From Aus
	The proponent should rehabilitate the area concurrent with his work	Noted. To be suggested to the proponent and included in the EMP
	Where will people (workers) stay	Most of them will stay in Aus only few will stay onsite as per shift.
MEFT-NBRI  Mrs. Vanessa Stein Tel: +264-61-2022013 Vanessa.Stein@mawf.gov.na v.na	While we recognize the importance of mining activities for the growth of our economy and its development, we have the following concerns:  Mining activities have always been known to leave behind a very aesthetically disturbing sight; especially in an area that is world renowned for its succulent diversity, endemism, and threatened plant species. The BID is downplaying the importance of the area. This is one of the two most important areas for plants in the country. It is a hotspot for endemism and diversity  Recommendations	The BID gave a brief description of the proposed activities.  We did recognise the sensitivity of the area and as such, a specialist study will be conducted as part of the EIA.

	A full botanical study MUST be conducted by a QUALIFIED BOTANIST on account of the fact that the proposed project will impact the Succulent Karroo Steppe. The accumulative impacts of developments should be seriously considered. The NBRI must be contacted to request a list of species for all the quadrants within this EPL. If the area is very dry it will not be possible to see the geophyte diversity, and this is why it is so important to consult a list of species for that area. Upon preliminary extraction of a species list we can already conclude that there are over 60 species which are endemic to this area of which 28 species are protected, not to mention the ones that are near threatened or endangered. Just looking at these figures one can already tell that this is a center of endemism and diversity. This area, especially rocky habitats, is a very important ecological area. Single endemic and endangered flora species exist on this Project site, which should be identified and relocated before any exploration or site clearance commence. It is accordingly recommended that a Search and Rescue Management Plan be drafted (with monitoring plan) and that this Plan include the necessary permit/s as per the Forest Act (No. 12 of 2001, as amended). This Plan should be implemented by a botanist to be present during site lay-out and demarcation, to identify protected and endangered species for removal and transplant. Site lay-out should be done within a carefully planned and responsible manner to avoid unnecessary removal of ground cover or any endangered and or protected species be trampled on. Climate change is already impacting this area and any further development should take extra precautions to prevent further damage and destruction. Recommended sources <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Patterns and plant diversity and endemism in Namibia, Craven and Vorster, 2006.</li> <li>• Plant species richness, endemism, and genetic resources in Namibia, Kolberg et al 1998.</li> <li>• WIND QDS data for QDS 2615DD.</li> </ul>	The ecological study will identify the biological settings of the area in terms of flora, fauna as well as interrelationships with each other. The proposed Botanical study which supposedly focuses on flora is well-covered under the ecological study. The site footprint will cover about 9 km<sup>2</sup> around the Twyfelskupje complex. A search and rescue plan has been developed and will be implemented as part of the EMP. The ecological study was prepared by an environmentalist who is well vested in the field of Horticulture and knowledgeable in dealing with plant propagation and conservation. The recommended sources were reviewed, and findings were incorporated in the EIA and Specialist study.
