

Iterermagô vendor steps into police trap

March 11, 2020 | Environment

A 47-year-old Onawa man in Oshakati's Okandjengedi informal settlement was arrested on Monday when he tried to sell an Itermagô to a police detective.

The detective presented himself as a buyer in a trap set by police, Nampa reports.

NamPol's inspector Thomas Aiyambo confirmed the incident to Nampa. He says the accused was arrested when he wanted to sell a live eatery at his house in the settlement.

According to Aiyambo, he wanted N $ 120,000 for the food truck.

He complained that he was in possession of protected wildlife and wanted to trade in it. Aiyambo could not confirm