Genesa Experience spoils fans to 4 albums in one go.

Genesa Handrick

• CONRAD ANGULA

A NAMIBIAN songstress, who is based in Germany, reached a milestone in her music career recently when she launched four albums on the same day.

Genesa Handrick recently took the exclusively selected audience through her music journey, at the Namibian Broadcasting Corporation's Radio Studio 7, as she introduced her new music in Namibia for the first time.

Also known by her stage name, Genesa Experience, the fast-rising star of Swakopmund-based SanWelwitschia Music Productions (WMP) also shared insights into her musical endeavours overseas.

Backed up by a band of powerful session musicians like Fernando 'Pio' Paulus (drums), Kali Kasinda (key-board), Tayo Kasinda (bass) and the founder of WMP, Steven Alvin Naruseh (keyboard), Genesa dished out a classic show-stopping performance.

Known as the female voice on late King of Ma/Gaisa Phura Darwe's monster hit 'Ti Hanatsa Xu E', Genesa effortlessly belted out songs from her new albums.

The German-based artist also treated the audience to a rendition of 'Ti Hanatsa Xu E'.

She reassured guests that there is definitely a market for Ma/Gaisa music in Germany.

"People like myself are keeping the genre alive with regular shows in pubs and small music festivals around our suburb. There is a large community of Namibian expatriates in our city, Bad Schwartau."

"Apart from the shows I am staging with the other Namibian musicians, I have a very quiet life with my family. My husband is a daredevil who is more into challenging sport. He loves jumping from aeroplanes for fun, which is completely different from music," she said.

Genesa started off as a back-up singer for other established artists of the WMP record label, like Phura, Ou Stakes and Killa B, before she carved out a career as a singer for herself.

She was just about to take off as an artist when she moved to Germany, but she never stopped singing as she continued to record and became one of the most esteemed recording artists of the WMP label.

One album, 'Hooba' is completely in German, the other, 'Voorspoed', is in Afrikaans.

The third album, 'On The Mountain Top', is a collection of gospel songs, while the fourth, 'Aio', is a Ma/Gaisa album.

Genesa also has a fifth album, titled 'Sa Du! Amoma', which is a single.

The album launch coincided with the shooting of a documentary about the beginning of Genesa's music career before she left Namibia and her present life as an artist in Germany.

"My stay in Germany does not revolve around my family only. I want to use my popularity to also attract more German tourists to Namibia. I want to influence the people here through my music," she says.

"The people will only believe I am from Namibia through something like a documentary depicting the Namibian landscape. We are not only living away from home, but we are proud Namibians, and this is the best way to give back to our country of birth."

The albums are available on all digital platforms.

Fans can also contact Welwitschia Music Productions on +264 64 461 196, 081 325 3959 and 081 701 6838, or at www.wmp-productions.com

New school in pipeline for Oshakati South

■ Nuusita Ashipala

ONGWEDIVA – To address the shortage of classrooms, education minister Anna Nghipondoka on Friday announced that Oshakati South is amongst the areas where a new school is earmarked for this financial year.

"Already yesterday, I sent another letter to the minister of finance to say that for this financial year, we still have other projects to be implemented, of which Oshakati South and Onamutayt hostel are on board," the minister revealed.

She was speaking at a meeting with the Oshana education directorate leadership.

The meeting, which was also attended by learners, analysed 2023 academic results to improve the 2024 academic performance.

Nghipondoka said infrastructure development, overcrowded classrooms and pre-graders not attending school remain a concern for the ministry.

She said her ministry will continue improving the enrolment of the pre-graders and grade ones, having already seen a 60% improvement with the construction of 1 000 classrooms.

These classes were constructed during the last financial year, 90 of which were constructed in Oshana.

The deputy director of education in Oshana, Hilma Nanyango-George, expressed gratitude for the construction of the classrooms.

The region is often faced with a shortage of classrooms to accommodate pre-grade and grade one learners.

This year, the directorate was forced to retain pre-graders in private kindergartens, as there was no space to accommodate all the learners who applied for pre-grade.

The affected learners were to be absorbed in grade one in 2025, hence the new school will come in handy.

"As a directorate, I'm very delighted with the minister – the construction of an extra school at Oshakati, where we have more learners who need school. The construction is going to help us, as a directorate, because it is going to provide more classrooms to accommodate more learners," she said.

"Nuusita Ashipala is an information officer at the Ministry of Information and Communication Technology in Oshana region."

Caley addresses Hardap's education challenges

MARIENTAL – Deputy education minister Faustina Caley engaged principals and regional councillors at Mariental in the Hardap region.

The engagement aimed to discuss the performance of schools and challenges across all three education circuits – Naukluft, Auob and #Oan//ob.

Accompanied by Hardap governor Salomon April and member of Parliament Harald Kambrude, her visit covered a detailed analysis of student performance for May and June this year. Discussions focused on strategies to enhance overall student performance, and address key educational challenges.

In her remarks, she said the newly approved National Conference on Education Implementation Plan (NCE-IP), a comprehensive seven-year strategy, is aimed at addressing critical areas within the education sector. "The NCE-IP is our blueprint for educational reform. It focuses on 10 key areas, including improving access to quality education, accelerating infrastructure development and expanding digital learning," she said.

Caley also talked about the timely provision of educational resources, stressing the importance of adequate allocations for school stationery, and funding for textbooks and practical subject materials. "We need to avoid misuse of these funds, as it directly impacts our students' preparation for exams," she cautioned.

She said the ministry is procuring interactive smart screens and computer laboratories to enhance digital learning, a step towards integrating technology into the classrooms.

She emphasised the need for strong school management and a defined school culture, noting that effective leadership and a clear school identity are crucial for improving educational outcomes.

"Let's work together to build a vibrant education system that serves every Namibian child," she said.

She then urged educators to collaborate and drive the necessary changes to achieve a robust and inclusive education system in Namibia. -Nampa

Participate in road infrastructure – Andre

Engagement... Stakeholders in Erongo recently met to discuss issues pertaining to road infrastructure development.

■ Rauna Kalola

SWAKOPMUND – Erongo governor Neville Andre has emphasised the critical role of public participation in the ongoing review of the regional roads master plan held in Swakopmund this week.

Addressing a diverse audience, which included the Roads Authority team, regional and local authority councillors, members of the Erongo regional roads board and various stakeholders, the governor underscored the importance of involving the community in planning processes that directly impact their livelihoods.

"Roads are the lifelines that connect our people, facilitate trade, and enable access to essential services," Andre stated.

He noted the indispensable role that road infrastructure plays in supporting key sectors such as agriculture, tourism and mining.

He acknowledged that the success of the road master plan hinges not only on technical expertise, but also on the active involvement of the communities which rely on these networks daily.

The review of the roads master plan, which serves as a strategic blueprint for the sustainable development and management of the region's road network, aims to assess the progress made thus far, identify ongoing challenges, and refine approaches to meet future demands.

Andre also called for continued collaboration and innovation among all stakeholders.

He stressed that public input is crucial for creating a road network that is resilient, inclusive and capable of supporting the region's aspirations for growth and prosperity.

"The participation of our citizens in this review process is not just welcomed. It is essential," he said.

He praised the dedication of those involved in the initiative, and urged for a collective effort to overcome the challenges ahead.

As the Erongo region continues to grow, the governor's remarks highlight the importance of ensuring that infrastructure development is guided by the needs and voices of its people, paving the way for a more connected and prosperous future for all.

The revision of the regional roads master plan for Otjozondjupa, Kunene and Omaheke was set to take place on 20, 22 and 28 August 2024, respectively.

Ongwediva Trade Fair: Watch your wigs, phones

■ Victoria Immanuel

ONGWEDIVA - Oshana police deputy commissioner Frederick Ndjadila has said the safety of people during the Ongwediva Annual Trade Fair remains their chief priority.

He said they will soon embark on the police operation to prevent crime, especially in Ongwediva, as they foresee a big influx of people to the town and region in general.

Ndjadila indicated that they will operate for 24 hours for the duration of the fair.

"We will deal with all the thieves who are coming to Ongwediva to rob people. Police officers will be deployed everywhere, including those with plain uniforms," he said.

He added that the police officers will be on the trade fair premises and outside, ensuring law and order.

"Not everyone in the fair come to socialise; some people come with intentions of robbing people, so be vigilant and be eye-sharp on your wigs, phones, and other valuable items," he warned.

Ndjadila further stated that all safety measures will be implemented at the trade fair.

He also urged people to be careful when taking public transport, especially women.

"Nowadays, public transport is not safe. Taxi drivers are also robbing people, any time of the day," he cautioned.

Oshana police spokesperson Frieda Shikole advised homeowners when going away for too long to ask trusted neighbours, a relative or close friends to keep a watchful eye on their property.

Alternatively, they should have a trusted, able-bodied person occupy the premises during the time they are away.

"Also inform our on-duty officers that you will be away; give them the address of your residence for them to patrol around that street," said Shikole.

"The police will be targeting housebreaking because many people leave their houses unattended during the festive period," she said.

Watch out... The police in Oshana have warned attendees to protect their belongings, particularly wigs and cellphones.
